P.O. Box 165, 18 North St., Marcellus, NY 13108, publishes this newsletter and mails it quarterly to its members and advertisers.

Please direct comments or questions to Hollis Abbott.

From The President ...

Looking back over this past year many tasks have been accomplished: our flag pole and sign are lighted; the large tree in the backyard has been cut down and removed; a new roof has been put on; the floor in the Tefft room has been replaced; most of the outside painting is done; and the paving of the driveway and parking lot is set to begin. Without your support none of this could have been done. Please continue your memberships and donations to preserve our history and this historic building.

Over 1200 volunteer hours have been logged in through October 1st. We have had three hundred forty-four visitors sign our guest book and one hundred sixty eight items donated to our collection. Approximately fifty family histories have been researched.

Our used book sale is going well with some great books that can be purchased during our regular hours. Book donations gladly accepted anytime.

We are looking forward to decorating the house for the holidays and an Open House will be held on Dec. 13th from 10 am to 4 pm. For your Christmas shopping, there will be some crafts and Avon products for sale along with our regular merchandise.

Thank you to the Clifford Buffan family for donating the funds for the Bell Tower which will be erected in the Spring.

Happy Holidays!

Peg Nolan ~

Marcellus Observer October 15, 1948

History of the Village of Marcellus Written by Mrs. Fellows for Historians of Village

The town of Marcellus is one of the original townships of the Military Tract. This tract consisted of land assigned by New York State to Revolutionary Soldiers of the N.Y. line "Bounty Lands", 1 mile square to each soldier. The surveyor, Gen. Dewitt and his associates named the town after Roman and Greek Statesmen. Marcellus was named after a noted Roman. American and Indian names were also used. East and West Hills were settled before the town. The first to come was Don Bradley from Cheshire, Conn., who was born in 1767. He graduated from Yale college in 1789. He was a minister for two years after which he resigned and came to Marcellus with Deacon Samuel Rice in 1794, their wives were sisters Eunice Beach Bradley and Hannah Beach Rice.

They saw the need of a mill for grinding. Therefore, they built one on the Creek, a little farther along than the old stone mill we remember. Men from Camillus assisted. Previously they had gone to Manlius or Seneca Falls with their grain. Many walking. First to settle in town in 1794 were Mr. Cobb, Joab, Peter and Levi on East Hill. Cyrus Halcomb on West Hill, also Nathan Kelsey, Thomas Miller, and Col. Bigelow Lawrence with four sons. The Colonel's home was what we know as the Share Place. Ariel Lawrence, also a Revolutionary Soldier and brother of Bigelow, settled on East Hill. His daughter, Asehath, married her cousin, Jeptha, son of Bigelow. Maj. Martin Cassett (Cossit) came in 1798. His home was on the north side of the Methodist church, which was the only road west then. Caleb Todd settled on East hill, later became the Dorchester place. Capt. Martin Goddard's home later became the Hiram Covell place. William Bangs was farther up East Hill. James Millen on Baker Hill road (now Falls Road). He and his four sons died in a few years in the epidemic of typhus fever. Capt. Goddard had nine sons, four were taken by another epidemic.

Not many of the "Bounty Lands" were taken up by soldiers. The men that came had means to pay, mostly cash. Dr. Elnathan Beach, revolutionary soldier, came in 1795 and built a house where Mr. Hunt's store was, he sold merchandise, groceries and medicines. He was the first postmaster in the first post office there, first sheriff, and first physician. He died at the age of 40 years. He was the first Revolutionary soldier to be buried in the old cemetery. His daughter married Dr. Plynic (Pliny) Goddard. He was succeeded by his brother, Dr. Bildad Beach who studied with Dr. Benjamin Rush of Philadelphia, who was a surgeon in the War of 1812. He did wonderful work during the small pox epidemic. In this town, vaccination was just coming in. There were few "pest houses", one a way up East Hill and a new one in town. Later he kept the tavern and was host to Gen. Lafayette on his passing through Marcellus June 1824. His wife was the former Hannah Casett (Cossit). They kept a very fine Inn. These Inns were very frequent on the Moir road from 2 to 4 miles and were always crowded. These Inns were very frequent. Travelers knew where the food was good. Dr. Beach practiced until 1829. Then took over the Inn and retired in 1856. The first Inn was kept by Deacon Samuel Rice on the road north of the Methodist Church.

The town meeting had been held in Camillus, but on account of the distance and more voters were in Marcellus it was decided to hold meetings at the Inn of Deacon Samuel Rice. Soon after Deacon Rice built the tavern where the Catholic Church stands and the upper room was always prepared and used for services on the Sabbath, people in those days making all preparations on Saturday before sun down. A lady told me that unexpected company came and no one had thought about grinding the coffee so in the morning her father told her to go in the hay mow so no one would hear grinding. Meetings had been held in the homes and if necessary each had to bring his own candle.

In 1802 measures were taken to build a church as the majority were Presbyterians and being a small group all united. Money was given by 165 people. The land for the church and later the school and cemetery were given by Judge Bradley. The church was built in 1803 at a cost of $1,500. There was no ceiling or steeple or bell or stove. The pulpit was made of board and the seats out of slabs. People brought their foot-warmers and replenished the coals between the second service at the tavern.

I have one of those foot-warmers which belonged to my husband's great-grandfather, Robert MacCullock (McCulloch), a Revolutionary soldier, who lived on the road (now Frank Gay Road) that connects East Hill road with Baker Hill road (now Falls Road). He came here in 1806 from Pelham, Mass

In 1814 the Church was enlarged, furnished and painted, and a steeple added at a cost of $4,500. This was done with money raised by selling what was known as "pew ground". In 1851 the church was taken down and the present one built. This church of 1803 was the only meeting house between New Hartford, Oneida county and the Pacific Ocean. Rev. Levi Parsons was the first minister called in 1807.

Dr. Parsons was born in 1779 in Northampton, Mass. He graduated from Williams college in 1798, and studied theology with Dr. Hyde. He was licensed to preach in 1806 and was second minister in Onondaga county. His relations ceased in 1833. He was one of the founders of Auburn's Theological seminary, a member of the Board of Trustee, and a chaplain in the war of 1812, 159th Regiment of New York State. A marker was placed on his grave by the Daughters of 1812.

He taught young men in his home in advanced preparation for college. His successor was Rev. John Tompkins, his wife was a sister of Mrs. Eastman of Rochester whose son later was the famous George Eastman who used to spend summers here and play with the boys of the town.

In the early days there was much discussion with regard to stoves in the churches. The stove side won.

The bell was given by Dr. Bildad Beach, Dr. Bangs and Dr. Erastus Humphrey. The ground in the cemetery was rented. One horse, a few lamps damaged done to be paid for by the owner. Erastus Humphrey paid $4.00 a year for the same. Money to be used to repair the church. In 1822 Colonel Bigelow Lawrence gave a legacy which was used to liquidate an indebtedness. In the early days ministers owned their homes usually a farm. Maj. Cassett (Cossit) sold Rev. Levi Parsons 100 acres at $10.00 an acre and only a few years since has the house and grounds passed out of the family – some changes but looks very lovely. Mrs. Parsons was a daughter of Deacon Samuel Rice, daughter of the first comer. He had several children, a daughter, Sofia, who married Samuel Fall, another married Erastus Humphrey.

It was the thing for young ladies to go away to academies or seminaries, Onondaga Valley, Homer, Chittenango, Moravia, Pompey Hill, Troy, Ft. Plaier (Ft. Plain?), Cazenovia.

Preparations for doctors meant reading medicine in doctors' office then going to New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, take examinations and later be junior and senior walkers (sic) in hospitals, we now call them interns.

All young ladies rode horseback. They would form a group and go to another town to call. My grandmother told me how some rode to Onondaga Hill and the young lady asked her mother if she could not have them for tea as it was Saturday they had new bread. The mother said "no, new bread does, go so." The girls never forgot it.

There were some of those side saddles in my grandfather's attic. I went by quickly, they seemed so real. Also on the wall was a large colored picture of the burning of Chicago and that was very real.

Note: Mrs. Fellows was Josephine Olivia Bishop Fellows, who was born in 1869 and died in 1961. Her husband, Henry H. Fellows (1865-1923), was the nephew of Henry Fellows (1837-1862) who died in the Civil War. The brick house that was the Fellows family home until the early 1900s still stands on Falls Road and a picture taken in the 1800s can be seen at the Steadman House.

"MY HILLS" By Mrs. Cora A. Marshfield

These are my hills, o'er them I walk,
Of them, I dream, to them I talk.
Within their arms the village lies,
Their tops reach up to touch the skies.
Spring's tender green, lush summertime,
In beauty clothe these hills of mine.

When Autumn spills her colors bright, Or winter draws her mantle white, Their beauty fills my heart with bliss, There is no beauty quite like this. I long to stop the hands of time, So lovely are these hills of mine.

Sometimes I've watched with misted eyes,
Aurora, from her bed arise.
Or paused a moment on some crest,
I'd see the day die in the west.
And known, that from the birth of time,
The calm, majestic hills are mine.

Someday, I shall lie down to rest,
Safe, folded 'neath the earth's soft breast,
None shall disturb me where I lie,
I shall not mark the birds that fly.
But I shall keep one thing apart,
A secret, deep within my heart,
Thru winding reels of endless time,
The hills I love shall still be mine.
